* To upgrade an image, open it in Photoshop. Click on the Image menu item and select Image Size. If you're working from a Photoshop template, the Image Size command is right there where it says "Change Image Size." If you have a document open, however, you need to go into Edit > Image Size and change the size using the pop-up menu. * Your image will be placed in a new Photoshop document, and the _active document_ will be placed on the active layer. Click OK. If you use a Photoshop template, the Image Size command should be grayed out when you select the new image. * Click the OK button to start the resizing process and then close the Open dialog box. You'll see the Photoshop resizing message, as shown in Figure 2-1. Figure 2-1. You'll see a resize progress bar that you'll see as you resize your photo. When the image is close to its final size, click the Resize button (labeled in the figure). When the image is close to its final size, click the Resize button. Choose Save As and make sure that you save the file with a new name (choose the "Add new file name" radio button and type a new name in the text box). Figure 2-3. Choose to save the image by selecting Save As or Cancel. Photoshop creates a new folder inside the folder where the template file is located. If you choose to save the file, it'll be saved in the folder where the template file is located. You have the option to save the image in Photoshop's native format, JPEG, but it's up to you whether you want to keep this file or save it as a different file type. If you save the file, it's saved as a.psd (preferably) Photoshop-format document. This will let the new file open using Photoshop, but it won't work in other image editors. Figure

Q: How to expose a Amazon S3 file system over HTTP? Can anyone tell me how to expose a File System (not a directory server) on S3 as exposed by a Cloudfront distribution? Is it possible? Scenario: I have a directory tree structure in my S3 bucket that I would like to expose as is over HTTP. I have few of these buckets and I would like to extend the S3 File System over HTTP. I want to create a dynamic DNS for these buckets. I have been using S3 service and want to use Cloudfront as CDN. I am using Amazon Virtual Private Cloud (VPC) for S3 and Cloudfront. Is it possible to configure S3 File System on Cloudfront and how? A: Now you can access S3 files directly from CloudFront. You need to use the "S3 Signed URL" in CloudFront. You can create the signed URL as explained here. A: This is possible using Key Management Service (KMS) in AWS. Create an S3 bucket with access policy that allows any user to view and write to the files. Create a KMS key and encrypt the S3 bucket. Obtain an access signature, for example, docRef = GetObject(fileName), keyName = AWSSAccessKeyid value = 'YOUR_KEY' and policy = policy Publish the file name (PUTObject) to a CloudFront distribution. The file will be encrypted on S3, and decryptable by CloudFront. More information about KMS here. How the antioxidant gene Keap1 protects against oxidative stress We know that oxidative stress can damage DNA, proteins, and membranes. If not controlled, oxidative stress can lead to deadly conditions, including cardiovascular disease, neurodegenerative diseases, and cancer. Our kidneys, liver, and lungs manage oxidative stress by producing and clearing ROS, or free radicals. However, if the internal defense mechanisms aren't enough to help cells repair the damage, an important cell signaling pathway called the Nrf2 pathway can be used to boost the cells' defense mechanisms against oxidative stress. The KEAP1 protein seems to inhibit the Nrf2 pathway. Scientists at the University of Colorado School of Medicine have determined the interaction between Keap1

Q: Kivy: How to use different id's for different widgets I want to have different id's for different widgets in kivy. For example, the app is of the following format : main.py from kivy.app import App from kivy.uix.gridlayout import GridLayout from kivy.uix.button import Button class mainApp(App): def build(self): layout = GridLayout(cols=1) cell1 = Button(text="01") cell1.bind(on_release=self.on_click) layout.add_widget(cell1) cell2 = Button(text="02") layout.add_widget(cell2) def on_click(self, *args): print "Button 1 was clicked" if __name__ == '__main__': mainApp().run() Output: Button 1 was clicked Button 1 was clicked How can I get the output as following : Button 1 was clicked Button 2 was clicked That is, different id's for different widgets. A: In kivy, every layout is identified by a unique id. So, by using grids there are only one of each id for the same object in a given layout. It is possible to use group ids (which you can define yourself as attributes of an object, and therefore you can freely assign them). A common id for a widget in a grid is widget.group. So, the code below is not a KIVY solution, but a PYTHON one. In main.py: main.py from kivy.app import App from kivy.uix.gridlayout import GridLayout from kivy.uix.button import Button class mainApp(App): def build(self): layout = GridLayout(cols=1) for w in ["cell1
